Course No. 086A
Course Title: Critical Approaches To Lit
Semester: Spring 2009

Please evaluate the course. (You might consider class readings, discussions, lectures, and activities; the intellectual challenge of the course; changes in your work over the semester; the value of what you learned.)

The class was okay. For the most part classes consisted of discussing the previous reading. I learned different ways to look at lit.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

He was mediocre. He was prepared most of the time but the class failed to captivate me.

Please evaluate the work you put into this course. (You might consider the quality of your written work; your contributions to group and class discussions; and your commitment to the course.)

I put a lot of work into my writing.

I liked the course over all, but I felt like I didn't learn a lot about theory. I had to do extra research for my paper to even find a good starting point. There were a lot of good ideas, but they needed more evaluation.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

I loved having class with Prof. Martin. He's very easy going and very available to help.

Absolutely incredible. There have only been 2 English courses that have really opened my eyes and this is one of them. The readings were new and provided new history/cultural insight. The discussions could have been more engaging had the room been set up differently. The lectures were exciting and thought provoking and I felt very challenged overall. I feel as though I have a better understanding of analysis + comprehension of texts as well as all " of literary theory.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

Paul was very nice and responded quickly to questions and emails. Preparations for class were pinpoint - great lesson plans and allowed freedom to explore topics. Friendly interactions.

The reflection of my work is show a more in my ability to write rather than in the course - unfortunately.

It was weird hearing/learning so much about Canada from this Canadian professor but as we learned, the French pioneered a great deal of Literary Theory, so Professor Martin's insights/background enhanced the multi-national contribution to this field. He was a very happy-go-lucky, concise, and thorough instructor and I will recommend him to everyone.

Work included on-line discussion boards, two papers and two tests. Attendance was mandatory and I don't think participation was.

Please evaluate the course. (You might consider class readings, discussions, lectures, and activities; the intellectual challenge of the course; changes in your work over the semester; the value of what you learned.)

This was a pretty decent course. It was mostly lecture based and got a little dry at times but I learned quite a bit from it. It was pretty difficult as well.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

He was a really great professor. Really knows his stuff. At times you could tell he does a lot at the last minute but he was really cool.

I worked pretty hard in this course. I feel like I could have done a little more but the workload wasn't too large either.

I really liked the novel choices that we read. They were not only good reads but they allowed me to read/learn beyond my general scope. The lectures were kind of boring as we seemed to just summarize the readings - though there was a definite ability to make the lectures more interesting.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

I personally feel that this course was very easy. I did not feel that I was pushed very hard nor that I learned very much.

The material was dull and I felt the last novel Volkswagen Blues was very poorly written.
