Course Title: Canadian Fiction
Semester: Fall 09

Please evaluate the course. (You might consider class readings, discussions, lectures, and activities; the intellectual challenge of the course; changes in your work over the semester; the value of what you learned.)

The course was a solid examination of a Survey of Canadian Fiction throughout the 20th and 21st century. Readings were varied and interesting.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

The professor was ~~knowledgeable~~ knowledgeable about the subject matter and aimed to present it to students in a clear lecture / discussion format.

Please evaluate the work you put into this course. (You might consider the quality of your written work; your contributions to group and class discussions; and your commitment to the course.)

I did all the readings and handed in excellent written work.

I loved this class. There is always good discussion & I knew what was expected from me. I thought most of the class was usually engaged in the lecture & comfortable raising their hand.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

Paul's expectations were reasonable; deadlines were not a huge deal (ie when to finish a certain novel or blog posting). This helped me to enjoy the class rather than view it as an obligation. I also felt comfortable and accommodated through emails & meetings outside of class.

Please evaluate the work you put into this course. (You might consider the quality of your written work; your contributions to group and class discussions; and your commitment to the course.)

I read all of the required material (and enjoyed it) and spend quality time on essays & blog postings. I also made an effort to participate in each lecture.

Great course, ~~and~~ some amazing novels, interesting discussions, plus some CANADIAN politics/history. There were too many novels to read this semester, and it would be more beneficial to use less in the future so students can discuss them in more depth.

I unfortunately did not get to read all of the novels because I had so much other coursework, but 98% of them I did. Hard essay topics, but ~~good~~ good essays.

Please evaluate the course. (You might consider class readings, discussions, lectures, and activities; the intellectual challenge of the course; changes in your work over the semester; the value of what you learned.) Most of the books we read were very interesting. I think that maybe we read one book too many because it was extremely challenging to finish the last one at the end of the semester. Not because of slacking off, but because it was over 300 pages and there's a lot of work for other classes, too.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.) Always prepared, always interacting, always willing/encouraging student opinion. Feedback on papers was very helpful.

I really enjoyed Paul's class. He was always engaging us in good discussion. The books were perfect & all could be easily related. They were interesting, telling of Canadian lit., & pleasurable. The blogging was new to me but I thought it was a great component to the course b/c there are so many people who don't talk in class at all & ~~with~~ ^{with} blogging we get to see what they think of each book & how they read & interpret novels.

Paul is the best! He's always prepared, engaged, & very passionate about the lit we read. He loves Canada & that makes his passion more prominent. He is a thorough grader, taking at least an hour per essay to grade & the feedback was helpful & also thorough. It's refreshing to have such a dedicated Professor.

I found ~~that~~ the literature selected for class ~~to~~ be a cohesive ~~and~~ yet diverse spectrum of Canadian Literature. This course, admittedly, had a lot of ground to cover. An entire vast and varied country, plus the corpus of its literature, is quite a lot to think about in one semester. At times, this seemed to be what hindered this course most - too many ideas in too little time. Had we had a bit more of an intense focus on a smaller number of themes in these texts, perhaps it would have been easier and more memorable to digest. Overall though, we read wonderful books, and I enjoyed the course.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

Paul Martin did a fine job of keeping the class engaged, even at ten AM on a Monday morning. I appreciated all of the time he spent reading my essay, and providing me with feedback. He was also very available to speak and meet with students outside of class. Maybe he could have drawn some responses in class out of more students, though, through group activities or simply calling on quieter students.

Please evaluate the work you put into this course. (You might consider the quality of your written work; your contributions to group and class discussions; and your commitment to the course.)

I worked pretty hard in this class. Came prepared, took notes outside of class, raised my hand in class. I'd give myself a pat on the back. Perhaps I could have spent a bit more time giving Paul feedback in an informal setting outside the classroom.
