I really enjoyed the readings. Some of them were challenging, but I enjoyed the depth of discussions.

I did feel like we moved too quickly through the works - perhaps one less book would have given more time to go further in depth into the books.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

Prof. Martin was always prepared & interacted well with students.

Certainly could have put in more. Some books didn't draw me in so I had hoped, but the blog postings required effort.

The course was well conducted. The material was presented in a manner that allowed student's to be challenged, but to learn.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

Dr. Martin was spectacular. He had a strong grasp on the material & presented it in a good way. He was always available outside & inside class.

Please evaluate the work you put into this course. (You might consider the quality of your written work; your contributions to group and class discussions; and your commitment to the course.)

I worked hard in this class. The material demanded a lot, but it was rewarding.

Please evaluate the course. (You might consider class readings, discussions, lectures, and activities; the intellectual challenge of the course; changes in your work over the semester; the value of what you learned.)

The only problem I had with the course is that I felt that you really wanted to be teaching English 180. We read a lot of first nations stuff, and I felt like it got a little repetitive.

Professor Martin is generally awesome. Not too strict or too easy-going, and definitely loves what he teaches.

I worked pretty hard. It's hard to remember to do the blog posts on time, though.

Please evaluate the course. (You might consider class readings, discussions, lectures, and activities; the intellectual challenge of the course; changes in your work over the semester; the value of what you learned.)

The course investigated a variety of themes of Canadian literature. The subject matter forced students to really examine themes of identity + culture in Canada that is commonly overlooked -

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

PROF MARTIN'S ~~ENTHUSIASM~~ passion for English is clear, his enthusiasm is present every class as he dives into new explorations in literature. He is dedicated, professional, and is always available for student aid. CLASSES ARE ALWAYS INTERESTING.

Please evaluate the course. (You might consider class readings, discussions, lectures, and activities; the intellectual challenge of the course; changes in your work over the semester; the value of what you learned.)

- poorly structured: didn't receive first grade until three weeks before classes ended (weren't able to see "where you were" in class and to see what kind of grader Paul is)
- novels were chosen well in the sense that they relate to one another, but were so well-connected that sometimes it felt like we were discussing the same themes all semester
- more graded work through semester, please (or give blog grades right away, at least)

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

- REALLY ANNOYING: says "umm" "umm" probably every third word; very distracting as an active listener
- just repeated what every student said; comments were not that insightful nor were questions probing

Please evaluate the work you put into this course. (You might consider the quality of your written work; your contributions to group and class discussions; and your commitment to the course.)

- committed as much as I could (did most of the reading)
- spent a significant # of hours on this course per week and still feel like I did poorly and didn't learn a lot

I thought we had a really great selection of books. It was a lot of reading in conjunction with my other courses, though. I love the blogs as small assignments. I really enjoyed 3 Day Road and Running in the Family. I didn't quite get through The Diviners because of length and I think Next Episode material probably could have been addressed with a better book.
