Course Title: Purks to Parliament
Semester: FALL 2010

Please evaluate the course. (You might consider class readings, discussions, lectures, and activities; the intellectual challenge of the course; changes in your work over the semester; the value of what you learned.)

The course itself was interesting, especially the portions from the plays and the novels we read. However, three hours of class can be tiresome and difficult to sit through. We covered a broad range of topics, and the course was challenging without being overbearing.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

Paul is a great professor! He is easy to approach and always helpful with class assignments. Paul is knowledgeable about the subject, but also has a great sense of humor and brings a lot of energy to the class.

Overall, the best professor I've had so far.

Please evaluate the work you put into this course. (You might consider the quality of your written work; your contributions to group and class discussions; and your commitment to the course.)

Overall, I put a lot of time into this class and the classwork. However, sometimes I would miss readings, just because they were long.

I found the class very informative and has increased my interest on the subject. The homework was all relevant to the course and the lectures thoroughly discussed what we read. The class was challenging because the amount of work given every week.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

Professor Martin was an excellent instructor, his subject was interesting, he taught it well and enthusiastically. It would have been more helpful if he could get our grades back to us soon.

I really liked this course. Paul Martin made it interesting with his enthusiasm and friendliness. I learned a lot about Canada. The only things I would change would be the length of the class - 3 hours in one sitting is a bit much. I would also encourage Paul to have more discussions than lectures.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

Paul Martin is an excellent professor. He is always in a good mood and enthusiastic about his class. He is very approachable ~~even~~ inside and outside of class.

I thought the readings we did for this course were interesting and informative. I liked listening to the playlists on the ipods supplied by the department. I really didn't feel challenged, though. I thought that we would be doing a lot more writing. We only wrote one formal paper. For a ~~it~~ supposedly "writing-intensive" course I think this is completely unacceptable.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

Professor Paul Martin was engaging and fun. He clearly communicated his ^{wealth of} knowledge with us. He didn't always ^{arrive} on time to class. Unfortunately, His feedback was somewhat limited, it was really positive, but not very instructive. I would have appreciated it if he would have been more ^{critical}.

I spent a lot of time reading, but not much time writing. I participated actively in class.

the course allowed me to expand my knowledge on Canadian culture and all the information I learned about Canadian aspects of everything is interesting and every discussion was fascinating.

I only wish we had written more papers instead of reading a lot.

Going to Canada was the best part of the course as he was able to show us the greatness of Canada, not just tell us.

Professor Martin has been my favorite professor here so far.

He is very knowledgeable of Canada EVERYTHING and he teaches the class very well. He is always available to help and answer questions freely. I love him. I hope to have him as a professor again.

I have written my best work in this class. Although I hardly spoke in the class I was always listening as he always hooked me in with his great lectures.

The course was very informative about Canadian government, economics, and culture. The course was not as writing intensive as I had hoped. With only one real composition, I feel my essay-writing skills did not improve as much as they could have. I do feel the course was very intellectually stimulating, due to class discussions based on assigned readings.

Please evaluate the instructor. (You might consider the instructor's preparation for class; interactions with students in class; quality of the instruction; feedback on your work; and availability outside class.)

The professor was very knowledgeable. Class discussions were very stimulating. There was not a lot of feedback on work. He was always welcoming outside of class.

I put a lot of reading into the class. ~~I did not~~
I feel the quality of my contribution to discussions was good.
Written work was standard, but not amazing.

This course was very different from what I originally expected. Coming into this class from an A.P. Lit course at my high school I anticipated that it was going to be like a semester of A.P. Lit just through a Canadian lens. The course wound up being much more of a social-science like "this is Canada", involving its history, culture, etc. Because of this we didn't read nearly as much Canadian literature, or do as much writing as I was expecting.

I thought that given it's size, the class would not be fully lecture oriented. It was. However, Paul was extremely approachable, friendly, and understanding. He was ~~and~~ a very pleasant professor.

I wish that the class had been more seminar-like and had allowed students to interact more with one another. Because of this I wasn't involved nearly as much as I would have liked.

A really good course. Interesting material that I never would've learned in another class. Lectures were informative and the projects were really fun and more interesting and interactive than any other projects I've done (ex: blog, podcast)
